That's quite a high price (and funny looking)... the only word that I can think of is :chirp:

holy shit! that thing again!

this seems to be assembled of parts from an ensoniq asr-x, a roland fantom and some playstation joysticks...all put together by a gamer teenager that's got a huge Tron poster in his bedroom the marketing strategy is just as bad if not worse

reminds me of this..

You can tell they're from another dimension by the star shape of the reflected lights from their magical space suits. Just like the beat thang.

It's surely not this poster you're talking about :

I really don't think it's fair to compare Battlestar Galactica to BeatKlangerzdude. Kind of gives the TV show a bad name, no?

That said, I still to this day refuse to believe this BK thing is anything but a long standing joke, these guys CAN'T be or real, can they?

i only meant from a design perspective. those angular helmets and the simon says toy in a microwave for 10 minutes = the beatkangz enclosure. the recent BSG series was awesome imo. i loved it. can't wait for caprica!

Caprica was AWFUL, just awful compared to BSG. Huge let down. The new movie (The Plan) they just released to DVD was kind blah too. Just redited scenes from the show for the most part. It was a great tv show, they need to let it go and move on though.

i dug Caprica. got it off netflix. i like the whole beginning of the "what does it mean to be human" thing and artificial intelligence ethics etc. i thought it was pretty well done. the beginning of being able to download/upload memories etc.. i thought it was gonna be terrible but was surprised and enjoyed it. maybe your expectations were too high?
