

---

I'm sure most Octatrack owners have seen this

Posted by thegreysky - 2011/10/21 15:14

---

Have you seen and understand this video?

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=FpkwuM8PkNI>

If so can you explain how to get the fader to control the slices as this person did? I have watched this video and tried to replicate this soooo many times resulting in failure each time it's frustrating...I've followed the steps but I don't seem to have all of the slice marks and even when I do somehow get the slice marks the marker just bounces around inside of one slice while the others don't play? Lost...I am lol

=====

Re:I'm sure most Octatrack owners have seen this

Posted by N_Rain - 2011/10/21 16:27

---

Should be pretty straightforward. I have to question if your crossfader is tracking correctly?

If in doubt open testmode at boot and use the crossfader. You should see the trig keys light up according to crossfader movement. Otherwise I don't know what you could be doing wrong assuming you are following the guide properly.

=====

Re:I'm sure most Octatrack owners have seen this

Posted by neilbaldwin - 2011/10/21 18:17

---

I skipped the video a bit but something that I thought was missing was how you actually assign the crossfader to the slice number.

If it is missing from the video then this might be where you're failing.

In the Playback screen:

Hold and rotate the Slice knob to 1

Hold and rotate the Slice knob to the maximum number of slices (16?)

When you now move the fader the Slice should go from 1 to 16, left to right

=====

Re:I'm sure most Octatrack owners have seen this

Posted by thegreysky - 2011/10/21 23:32

---

Oh wow thank you so much! I'm not in front of my machine right now bbut once I get home im ddefinitely gonna try these out

=====

Re:I'm sure most Octatrack owners have seen this

Posted by maass - 2011/10/22 01:02

---

And you have to activate the Slice option, double press the Playback Button, after that the Startpoint Parameter is the Slice selector...

=====

Re:I'm sure most Octatrack owners have seen this

Posted by thegreysky - 2011/10/23 08:01

---

I did the test mode and my slider works ut for some reason the instructions you provided did not work..I wish the manual was written better to be honest..

---

=====

Re:I\'m sure most Octatrack owners have seen this

Posted by neilbaldwin - 2011/10/24 05:50

---

Video yourself trying to do this and post it? Might be easier to spot what you're doing wrong. It's not easy so figure out where you're tripping up from the description you give.

=====