Suggested change to page nav

Just an idea about making the multi-page nav within a thread a little clearer. Currently it's a bit difficult to see which page you're on, and the numeric links could be spaced out more because there's plenty of space to the left.

In this graphic there's more space between each link, and the current page is highlighted in red. The hover state for the links could also be red.

I assume no further changes will be made here while the new forum (elektronauts.com) is under construction.

Oh, you're probably right. I wasn't aware that things were getting redesigned.
