
What do your names mean ?

Posted by cabin vibe - 2011/01/23 06:28

Hey , while i'm at it and typing just want to start a new thread - stolen from another forum that stole it from another forum

But , i make tracks in my cabin in my garden ... as well as paint in there and grow chillies .

It smells of turps , compost and midi leads - a bit vibey .

So you get the idea - just curious how you lot happened on yours ..

I work in glass.

A hertzian cone is a cone shaped piece of glass created when a bullet or other projectile hits a pane of glass - usefull for forensics to establish line of fire. Interestingly the widest part (or base) of the cone is furthest away from the impact due to propagation of shock waves. I have used this knowledge against a landlord trying to charge for a broken window - and explained that the impact could only have come from outside from kids throwing stones, air rifle pellet, sparrow etc won the case, probably through boredom on the subject.....)

As for my handle: I don't know why but I find the term slacks, meaning pants or trousers, to be amusing in a throwback to another generation kind of way. Make them ill-fitting and polyester and the hilarity just doesn't stop. I'm sure you're all with me on this. ;)

There's my domain, zoozither, which is taken from a Seussian game played in Whoville (Zoo-Zither-Carzay).

I have another one I haven't busted out yet but I've got the domain ready if I come up with the music that I think would fit.

I thought black shark was reference to black (covert) dsp (sharc). Just goes to show that vague names can be good because people can make what they want from them.

Always thought polyslax was polyester trousers. Beware the static electricity when you synthesise dude :laugh:

Liveseq from what I always wanted to do with music. Live sequencing. Only on this forum. Lots of my ideas come from two words made into one. Audioescapism (already used by another label) I have a whole page full to draw from. I used to be paradroid. When I get round to putting a release together the name will be something new. Difficult to find original Unused names.

I needed to dis-associate my current music with my old nick from early BBS hacking days in the late nineties, as well as my earlier music experiments centered around 'synth demos' on youtube and a gear head instead of who I really am... a artist dying to restore my music, and the dancefloor, back to the Detroit roots from whence it came. Black Circuit is another handle I'll start using for rawer techno shit. That's a play on Black Sabbath; I did a cover of their song, Black Sabbath using sinewave tones for all the riffs and basslines. I never finished it up, but I named it "Black

heavy name

i guess, many people google that name now :laugh:

@highsage: nice story behind your name

Yeah, like I mentioned earlier in this thread, this was a cutesy name my kid and his friend came up with (5-6 yrs old).

Then I did a google on it (yowza). But I'll be damned if a vulgar spanish Wikipedia entry will make me change my name!!!

I mean if Shagghie in Polish meant "grandfather buggerer" would you change your name or anagram? :laugh:

Hehe funny that. Kosi mazaki in Polish means stealing ballpens/markers so we had a word joke saying How is the Japanese ball pen thief called? Koshi Mazaki that is ;)

In 90's I was into graffiti and anime so that made it a link too I guess. Once I started making tunes I began to use it. Got few people confused that I'm Japanese :lol:

Love this thread btw!

Mine is my real name:laugh:

Daren - An african american name meaning born at night, fitting because I was born at midnight, spelt with one r, as opposed to the welsh spelling Darren which means hill or land and is actually a different name, the pronunciation is different too. Daren should be pronounced Dare-en unlike Darren which is pronounced to rhyme with barren, but everyone pronounces it like the welsh version which doesn't bother me.

Ager - rhymes with major, a very old anglo saxon name meaning prosperity or fortune, often mis pronounced to rhyme with bagger, which is kind of dumb, when you think of how you pronounce age. Again it does not bother me, but my wife hates it when mis pronounced and corrects people almost before they have finished the second syllable :laugh:

The name Peter comes from the Greek name Petros meaning "stone, rock".

mfnames.com

My parents were stuck for a name to give me, so took the name from a doctor at the hospital at which I was born.

The family name has indistinct origins in either English, Welsh, or Flemish/Germanic origin, like 'Hagen'.

A deep color meets sacred geometry in one of my favorite frequencies... Some old shamans I grew with called me indigo a lot due to a color they often see with and around me. 3 consecutive triangles intertwined and the 9 symbolizing the end of the road and the beginning of a new journey... and some other weird shit :huh:

My name is a funny (or "funny") variant of Garfunkel (of Simon & Garfunkel fame).

Later I found it means, from Urban Dictionary:

(n.)The miniature orgasm one experiences after urination.
Often accompanied by a short tremor or shaking.
Typically, barfunkels precede extremely volumous urination.
Highly common among individuals experiencing alcohol intoxication.

Barfunkel experience among females is unknown.

Some of the meanings here are quite fantastic so mine is positively boring.

My name is Jack.

I have a beard.

Mine comes from DJ Simple, a name I adopted 20yrs ago when I was in a sound system running drum n bass clubs. All the other Dj's had names like 'razor' or 'darkeye' I chose mine one night as a backlash to pretentious Dj names. It stuck and I still use it, now playing on www.nakedbeatz.com every other thursday.

Mine came from a program error after eating an icecream in the sun.

It was in the time, i was programing my bulletinboard somewhere in the beginning of the 90's..
Most was finished, but it did not have a name yet... while on a small break, i was eating a pear flavoured festini.. sun in my face, small clouds in the air.. the sugarbuzz.. hmmm.. festini..
i caught myself dreaming of another one.. the dreams of festini.. Hooray a name..
in my joy and sugarsweet rush.. ran to my computer.. and started coding .. editing.. bits and bytes where flying around.. untill... It was time to start up for the first time.. there it was..
operator: The Dreammaster.. bbsname: The Dreams of Destiny...
In my childhoodfueled speedyness i made a typo or two in the word festini..
and i just kept it.. Had a wonderfull hobby for many years..
though.. nobody actually wanted to type : The Dreammaster of the Dreams of destiny..
It got shorter and shorter each few years.. untill the point where the dreammer was left... and thats why dreammer has 2 m's in it.

that, and because my music tastes like Mmmmmm :)

My pseudonym comes from letters of my real name and forename and playning wi pronunciations and from reflexions between I and I and the Ginkgobiloba Tree. It took meal ot of time to find it. I like the idea that you can really wonder from which place on the planet it could come from.

Typed it in google, I foud later this name used by a man in Brasil, but nothing yet.
I like pseudonyms.
As a mouth harp player, my name is Berimbau Jack (<http://soundcloud.com/berimbaujack>:))

Mine are initials as well, bonus for simplicity. And it's amazing how few BBSes have "JES" taken.
