
Compilation for Actuel

Posted by darenager - 2012/05/04 19:25

I'm thinking lets do a user compilation dedicated to the memory of Ryan, maybe sell it via one of the digital stores and donate the proceeds to his family.

Who's in?

If you missed the thread about the sad news please leave your condolencess there:

http://elektron-users.com/index.php?option=com_fireboard&Itemid=28&func=view&id=176459&catid=9

EDIT - UPDATE The responses so far make me proud to be part of this community, I think it is very fitting and a lovely testament to how highly regarded Ryan was, however my inbox is getting a little full so if you don't hear back from me please be patient. Elektron HQ have very kindly offered to take care of the admin and backend of things, feel free to add your thoughts and ideas to this thread.

EDIT - UPDATE2

Title - Actual Memories

Track duration - Preferably under 6 minutes, for practical reasons.

Style/Genre - Any

Platform - Bandcamp

Release date - TBA

Submissions by - 25th May 6PM GMT, 1 per artist

Number of tracks - As many as wish to contribute (probably 30-40)

Price - minimum of $5 USD but with option to pay more or buy individual tracks at $1 USD or more

Promotion - Via Elektron, social media, EU forum, Blogs, Youtube

EDIT- UPDATE 3: SEND TRACKS HERE:

<http://soundcloud.com/elektron/dropbox>

IMPORTANT - Please read all of the following before sending

Be sure to include project name and title. Also an email address where you can be reached. Please also tag the track 'ActualMemories' (note spelling)

All tracks must be in by 25th May 6pm GMT

Tracks should be wav or aiff, 24 or 16 bit, no normalisation, and around 3-6db of headroom if possible, also best to avoid using heavy master compression or mastering processing as they will all be professionally mastered anyway

EDIT UPDATE 4 Link to website <http://www.actual-memories.com/>

Thanks;)

Posted by darenager - 2012/05/04 20:22

Awesome guys, I had a few PMs from certain people too, so it is ON.

Personally I think the more tracks the better, but perhaps limited to 1 per participant, Bandcamp offers a much better cut than mainstream download stores. Also Bancamp payout quicker and there is no charge for putting it up there. I have a digital label with the ability to put it in all digital stores worldwide, but the rates suck and the set-up fees are not really practical so I don't use it anymore. But any other suggestions welcomed. Also with bandcamp the account could be setup to go directly to his family.

I'm more than happy to promote it on my youtube channel, and I know you guys will do this also.

I know there are a few high profile forum members, feel free to PM me or one of the moderators if you want to get involved, it would be appreciated;)

Thanks!

EDIT - A PM from HQ, they are happy to co-ordinate and take care of back-end! Thanks guys:)

Re:Compilation for Actuel

Posted by darenager - 2012/05/04 22:07

Cheers me dears, got some great stuff being discussed with HQ, my own personal take on this kind of thing is to get the ball rolling, no fucking about and endless discussion, keep it simple and easy to manage without cutting corners. I think really we want to get this all set up within around 4 weeks to maintain momentum, enthusiasm and get the money rolling in.

Thoughts so far:

Bandcamp seems to be looking viable for a number of reasons, easy access, paypal, some custom stuff can be done, we might be able to persuade them to lower their revenue share from 15% to 10%, we can set a name your price model, lower set up fees (nil) and we can have as many tracks as needed. Also much quicker than for example itunes to get it out there.

I don't think we need to have any restrictions on what gear is used or musical style, and anyone who wants to contribute a track should be accepted - the objective is to raise money so the more the merrier IMHO.

If anyone has skills that could be utilised, step forward.

We need to think about things like artwork, promotion, name etc. A community effort, so feel free to contribute!

Thanks!

Thats the spirit mate! Ok so let's say all tracks to be submitted by Friday 25th 6pm GMT.

For anyone wishing to contribute who feels that this is not enough time then please consider donating an already finished track, everything counts and if you think it is good enough to put your name to and would like to do so then do.

I'm in for 100% that this is what we should do - a compilation for Ryan! And it's very nice to see people getting involved.

I've been participating to this forum for years and enjoyed its spirit with others. I've enjoyed the music and the people. I think Ryan was one of very best souls around here. After saying all this I feel very strongly that I should participate working on this project. I already worked with the earlier Machine-compilation and I'm sure I could help in some way. And yet, this time, I need to abstain myself of this, because I have something very much opposite happening at my family right now - I just cant find the free spot to concentrate on anything other now. Sorry for this guys - I'm sure you will bring an excellent compilaition for Ryan.

I'll be watching this and I'll in spirit with 100%! For Ryan!

I'd like to contribute. I think I'd mean something to Ryan if he was still here. Don't know what I'll be able to do in that time frame, but I'll give it a try.

As for a title of the compilation; I know he was a big fan of freejazz so I'm thinking a little nod to Coltrane's "A Love Supreme" might be in the right spirit. We had a few chats about that record from time to time. I know he liked it a lot.

RIP Ryan.

Title - Actual Memories

Track duration - Preferably under 6 minutes, for practical reasons.

Style/Genre - Any

Platform - Bandcamp

Release date - TBA

Submissions by - 25th May 6PM GMT, 1 per artist

Number of tracks - As many as wish to contribute (probably 30-40)
Price - minimum of $5 USD but with option to pay more or buy individual tracks at $1 USD or more
Promotion - Via Elektron, social media, EU forum, Blogs, Youtube

Thanks;)

On second thought, I can do it as long as people can help by submitting their tracks in the right format where possible. Wav or aif files, no mp3s, preferably 24bit, though 16 is ok if that's all you have. Ideally not already mastered or normalized with a bit of headroom.

Ok, thanks. Thinking about it, I guess you/Elektron were probably talking about SC tags, whereas I was thinking of the tags I apply in iTunes. In any event, I've done both and uploaded. Went with a new track so I could comply more easily with the 24 bit, -6db requests.

Hopefully this isn't too dumb of a question, but I've not yet figured out where/how we should send our track too. Also, I'm going with 16/44.1 unless we want to push for 24?

The more tracks we have the better... and for promo, if we all put in a strong effort to social network this project and float some of these tracks to some hi-vis DJ's, etc... we could potentially really help raise funds in a meaningful way. I'll do all I can.

Once all the tracks are in and mastered (big ups to Tarekith for taking this on) there will be a dedicated website and some promotion from Elektron, but in addition to this everyone is encouraged to promote it in any way possible, you can subscribe to the thread to be notified of updates by clicking the subscribe button at the bottom left of the page. Promotion will be most effective if it is a coordinated effort.

I know you guys will be doing your very best both with your track submissions and how much you pay when you buy the compilation;)

I'll reiterate again, all styles of music are welcome, and in this case it does not have to be made with Elektron gear.

Yeah I found quite mixed feelings when finishing and uploading a track. I was very conscious of hoping my sound was right for the cause and memory and that I was doing it for the right reasons. Seeing the re-appearance of the thread today about embroidered patches is testament to the support and drive that Ryan selflessly gave to this community.

the fact that you were motivated to do it and are doing it, is reason enough. making music to celebrate someone's life is always worth doing. i've thought about the track i am making and wondered if it was right too, but then i just have to get out of my own way and get back to the act of giving. i'm inspired by everyone making the effort on this one.

To be honest I tried not to think too much during the making of my track- I did make something the morning I found out about Ryan's passing but that isn't what Ive put forward for whatever reason. Instead I just did something that was as much my sound as I could make it, as a reflection of all I've learnt from the community.

Exactly. The tracks should not necessarily be sombre or in a particular style, the forum is a diverse and eclectic mix of characters, and it is likely that the submitted tracks will reflect this, to my mind this is a testament to the very success of Ryan's efforts of making everyone welcome in this community. And really, what could be more appropriate?

Im sure he'd dig the community coming together like this, putting forward something positive. In this life it just matters that we do what we can, give what we can. I didn't know him beyond this board, hardly at all in the grand scheme of things... but it seems to me that Ryan gave an awful lot.

Uploading my track called "Resonate". All Machinedrum track, apart from some Live trickery. I didn't find the time to work as much as I wanted on it, but I need to be part of this.

A nice memory just came back to me: When we were working on the 45 tribute in honor of Daniel H, there were so many contributions that we had to go through a selection process to narrow down the number of featured tracks. But this irked Ryan immensely, so much that he insisted on releasing the "leftover" tracks on a separate album. I think he hated the thought of not honoring the efforts of the ones that didn't "make it". He would have loved the efforts that this project generates. It is very much in his spirit :)

Big thanks to Daren and HQ for pulling this together!

I've had z e r o time to work on music for the last two months, and I had resigned myself to not sending a track in for Actual Memories, or sending it in later. thanks for the thoughts, both of you. i have been seriously racing the clock on this and slowly coming to the realization that the track i got going for this will not be anywhere near complete. i find its incompleteness gives it a soothing openness. this community has a bit of everything in it so that patchwork quality might just be the best thing about this upcoming album.

Re:Compilation for Actuel

Posted by darenager - 2012/05/25 06:25

Well, I just want to say that from my point of view the more tracks the better, I really hope that a nice varied selection of styles will serve 3 functions

1. To cast a wide net, making the compilation have something for everyone, therefore plenty of sales;)
2. To help people discover music they may not have encountered before and broaden horizons, something that I feel is very much in the spirit of this forum.
3. Adding value, we already know the quality will be high, so quantity is a double whammy.

Of course I hope that we can gain sales from outside of this community too:)

Further to this, I don't think it would be fair to exclude any tracks, it would be a bit of a faceslap for someone to go to the effort of recording a piece only for it to be rejected, besides since we are not doing a physical release I see no valid reason for limiting the number of tracks - Tarekith has stepped up to the mammoth mastering task, so as I can personally attest to the finished job will be top notch.

Nils and PT - I'm really chuffed you both got tracks done, I really struggled myself too, in the end I scrapped 8 tries, instead I ended up doing a monomachine only piece that I felt reflected my feelings. Previous efforts were OT pieces that were more technical but I felt less suitable.

I think we are at around 27 tracks so far!

I uploaded an old track of mine ('Ether of Waves'). an Odd out-of-key piece that probably doesn't fit in so easily, but what somehow reflects my feelings.

At first I thought I woud not upload anything, since I don't have much free time to make music nowadays (work, family, etc) and I wouldnt dare to upload anything old. But the tragic news of Ryan kept circulating in my head and I even had some restless dreams about it shortly after receiving news. The more I kept thinking about it, the more I felt stupid not to participate somehow - after all I've spent years here, community has inspired me in many ways and everybody else is participating. So I decided to go with a old track 'Ether of Waves' - this one is for Ryan.

Ok, I need everyone who submitted a track to type out their artist name and track name exactly as you want it to appear on the compilation, I will create a new thread for it, so make sure you post in there this info and nothing else please. Anyone who does not do this will have the text as written when they uploaded.

Artist name:

Track name:

Do not put it in this thread, put it here: http://elektron-users.com/index.php?option=com_fireboard&Itemid=28&func=view&catid=9&id=178777#178777 then noticed all the other stars had the most amazing golden tint happening..

Ryan is out there, and the universe welcomes his journey.

Just realized I missed the deadline for this, been too preoccupied with personal matters the last week :(If I can still submit I have an old track that I think fit the circumstances of the compilation well, but if not then I'll pay my respects by saying I wish I paid more attention to the deadline... Let's hope this goes well and that the memory of Ryan will be preserved in the best way (through E-U music)

Re:Compilation for Actuel

Posted by Tarekith - 2012/05/31 03:38

Ok, after a marathon session and lots of coffee, the mastering is wrapped up and the tracks are on their way to those that are doing the site. All together, 44 tracks and over 205 minutes of music, way to go everyone!

Huge thanks to all the artists for following the guidelines (mostly) for prepping the tracks when you submitted them, that alone saved me tons of time. Also, it must be said, the overall quality of all the tracks was very high too, so many of the tracks only needed a few nip and tucks here and there.

Finally, my usual disclaimer for this kind of work: please remember that the main goal of the mastering in this case was to make all the tracks sound like they belonged on the same album, and to fix any issues (really loud sub bass being the usual culprit with Elektron made music). The mastering I did for the compilation doesn't neccesarily reflect how I would have mastered these songs on their own, or as part of another album.

That said, everything sounds fantastic, so I doubt it will be an issue for anyone anyway :)

Glad to have helped out for such a worthy cause!

I definitely come across as a cunt a lot of the time due to my speak before I think subjective attitude. But must say I'm very proud to be part of this group.

On a side note next party I put on in Manchester I'd be up for fully promoting this comp and possibly getting some sets (dub to dance flore electronic)

FYI without name dropping I've had Dj sets and live sets from across Europe to the best home grown talent where possible (including myself haha) I'm a Dj before producer (I play records) and only until recent years I realise production is the statement i need to achieve meaningful recognition on the scene as a whole rather than locally (instead of just playing quality underground music from the heart) everybody thinks there a Dj now there's Traktor and Ableton available compared to 15 years ago when I got a job in the local record shop and learnt from the ground up.

I've had a break recently due to my little miss coming along (5 months and definitely in line to becoming my successor haha) but plan on getting back on it with a fresh head future bound.

Maybe a charity night as long as venue/sound can be covered I'll put in. (I usually take the hit which is sometimes the price of treading new ground)

Anyway I know the relevant heads in Manchester and also have the possibility of partnering with a much bigger night in Leeds where I recon I could take a room.....

Anyway I'm on the train off to Liverpool to see an old mate Steve Shiels (voodoo) play some proper techno.....

Laters folks.

Leon.

Maybe we should just release this for free if the money situation is the main hold up? I certainly understand everyone wanting to help Ryan's family out, but a lot of people put a lot of time into this to help honor Ryan and the work he did running this forum, and it's crazy that it's taken this long and we still don't have anything to show for it.

At least if it was free and actually available, the sentiment and good will of everyone who participated would still be there for his family to witness.

hey everybody,

the only thing i can think is that they are looking to tie the ELEKTRONAUTS transition into the compilation.
as a way of signalling the change.

the concept and idea of the compilation was to allow users to pay their respects to someone who helped build this community.

as for the suggestion of setting it up as a free download and/or bandcamp, i'm fine with that.

however this comes about i would love to see this hallmark moment come to be.

It's coming. We hit some snags along the way, but it's coming.

Promise.

oh boy...once this thing drops i'm going to hunt every single one of you moaning bastards down to make sure you've made a donation that's commensurate with your level of excitement.

and my hunting will begin VERY soon.
