i guess everyone here knows elektron is awesome, and is saying 'tell me something i don't know' .. haha.

hmm... did i ever mention the static lfo MD synth drum fine tuning trick?
yes?

okay, i got nothin' ...

nothin' but love for Elektron! :D

Ever since, I have my Octatrack&Analog Four, my hair grew back and I make better love to my wife, my children work better in school and the dog stopped biting the postman.
Thanks Elektron !

seriously awesome that I finding new things with the mono still awesome that the feedback on the a4 just makes the analog engine sound vintage awesome new effects in the a4 awesome a4 acid and low end feedback awesome planet traveling on mono awesome kicks and snares on the a4 awesome mono space echo
awesome arps

if they ever step up and do a poly synth, I'd be all over it. I'm in no rush for another synth at the moment and have been putting off seriously considering anything else with slight hopes that one day elektron would force my hand. would love to have another Elektron machine to go with my MM and MD.

I've wondered what Elektron would possibly do next, since they have basically said that they won't retread old territory. My guesses would be some sort of poly synth, or a mixer/interface. Whatever it is will certainly be awesome B)

Started from blank patterns, loaded a few older samples, rearranged them in a way that made them sound like never before, then fired up the Nord Lead and Animoog, fed some more digitalized waveforms in the OT while some randomly assigned trigs on the MD started to form intricate hi-hats and percussions patterns...

Half an hour later, a new deep and hypnotic techno track is done... Elektron is awesome.
