Hey !

I am to buy this webcam (HD Pro Webcam C920 Logitech), the problem is the audio line in is mono 32000 hz in the video... While the entering signal is stereo...

I do not understand, and Logitech support does not respond on the official forum !

I look for a webcam or cam Hd with possibility of recorded a signal lines in it stereo well on, for recorded my ideas with my Mono et MachineDrum and the shared with you!

An idea?

Thank !

Well..

Webcams with build-in mic is bad idea.. it sounds shit.

Webcams in combination with a decent soundcard + a program that allows to to select audio input and video input and combines it into 1 video-file, works pretty well.. I did this for some time.

its a bit cumbersome but i used windows media encoder for this.. (but we are talking about 6 years ago) after that i bought vcr..

now i think about buying a zoom q3hd.. it has seperate line-input.. so i should be able to plug in my gear.. make it record.. jam untill the sun rises.. and put it on youtube.

so thats about my 2cents.

Well on, no microphone here I wants not to make assemblies, editings, audio and video collage, not enough time for that for the moment...

Simply recorded the video and the audio on line in!

I is not enough time(weather) this evening for spoken, but I go looked of information on zoom q3hd. We speak about it tomorrow?!

Good week !
