papertiger ain't bad neither! her timefactor made it to me safe and sound, despite fedex deciding to leave it on my doorstep at 9pm.

you know who IS bad? The UPS Store. Because I went to the UPS Store to mail the pedal it using, you know, UPS, and the carrier was FedEx instead.

W. T. F.

Especially since the rate was HIGHER than at the actual FedEx store I usually go to down the street.

FAIL.

It's not unusual for couriers to sub-contract with each other like that. It's called "interlining" and in my experience they never tell you about it in advance or anything.

Re:good trader shout outs

Posted by papertiger - 2010/03/19 07:31

neuromodulator wrote:

...and in my experience they never tell you about it in advance or anything.

this aspect of it is what is problematic. the rates at the actual FedEx location down the block are different from the UPS Store rates even though the same courier is used (unbeknownst to me). I have a problem paying more for the same service I could get somewhere else, especially when the service I'm paying for is not the service I think I'm getting. It's misleading.

but that's for another thread. lol. sorry for the minor hijacking. :)

nobl1v1on aka Lars

What can i i say about this guy?

Nice, easy to talk and communicate with, immensely patient, meticulous in safe packaging and also a calming, sensible influence on someone that had international buyers panic.

I recently bought a Akai MPC 1000 through Lars and the transaction was flawless; everything as described and a complete pleasure to deal with.

Sold me a MnM Mk2 at a solid price, even was willing to post it on eBay for me to buy if I tossed him a few extra bucks to cover the fees so I had peace of mind as a buyer. Super fast shipping and included insurance on the package as part of the total price - can't get much better than that! MnM is exactly as described and included manual/adapter, great condition, fully functional - you can tell he takes care of his gear! Real nice guy, easy and fast communication - couldn't have gone any smoother.

BAD trader shout outs

Posted by Sofine - 2011/08/22 22:58

Going slightly against the grain here but I would like to WARN fellow Elektron Users about PIGGEPL (Jahn-Otto IndstA,) who messed me around big time in the sale of my MDUW+mk2. :angry:

I would warn against dealing with him. He promised that payment had been sent several times over several weeks but it never materialised. In fact, Jahn never got back to me from this point on. I turned away good honest buyers during that time by honouring my agreement with Jahn. I can only presume that he wanted to keep this deal for himself while he tried to raise the money.

FYI, I have since sold the unit locally. B)

Re:not good trader shout outs...

HEADS UP, if you ever deal with AutoMaticPanic aka Ray in the future. He was selling an SFX-6 and claimed it was mint. Lets start here: I reach him and he already dropped the price down from $1300 usd to $1100 usd. So being how I am, I figure this dude doesn't need to go lower and I offer him $1200, he accepts that. Not only does he accept the 1200 bucks but he said he will hold it for 3-4 days until I have the money in my hand. So I am STOKED and happy as ever because I wanted the KB version since wayback....but no, my world collapses when he hits me up the next day stating someone offered him 1250 on this site :(Yeah, hugh disappointment there. So I call him and tell him that I operate by "my word is my word" and that integrity is all I have in this world and ask him why he is changing the price on me after we had an agreement. So I end up paying him $1300 and $40 for the paypal exchange rate that he should be paying (him being the seller) and he finally gets around in his sweet time to ship it out....waiting, waiting, waiting.

THE SFX-6 WAS DAMAGED B/C HE DIDN'T EVEN RAP IT IN ANYTHING ELSE BUT THE ORIGINAL BOX. Helloooo? The original box is not much there Ray, but this dude DIDN'T EVEN INSURE IT!!!! Lovely, so I have a broken joystick and one headphone jack that is pushed into the machine PLUS the input and output nuts are missing with the joystick broken off floating around the box and scratching the MM. How is it mint ??? Another thing after giving the MnM a good look trough, the pots are well worn and need replacing and this doesn't happen from poor packing, it occurs from usage. Something is broken inside the machine and bouncing around in there and it's not mine to fix. There are internal and external damages and if they were not visible to you before you sold the machine then you may want to get to know your gear. It was advertised and "mint like new and used a FEW times"???? No, that doesn't get worn down in your studio only a few times, the pots need replacing after some good long sessions AND you DO NOT fill 106 banks after using it a "few times"!!!!To say the least, this guy does HORRIBLE buisness. I have called, texted and sent him an email... he has his money, thats all he cares. Now I have to pay and have this fixed..... A.Nightmare.Simply.A. Nightmare.

This dude says he knows the original founders of elektron and talks out the side of his neck, he has 7 posts just to sell this and his paypal account isn't even in his name...i think it's his mom's or something. At 40 years of age? Come on man... grow up. I also received this sfx-6 12 days ago and no contact since I told him about the problems. First time I have ever dealt with this kind of immature nonsense with gear and in the elektronik community. If he was a man, he would face this and fix it but I have already lost my nerve... Ray, if you do read this, I hope you know that this was a gift to myself after being in the hospital for months and being very ill for years...thanks, you are just a lovely human being. I rather pay more money and fix this myself than hear your voice again. :dry: Actually, after dealing with paypal, they recommended that I ship this back to him... sad man, cuz this is 1 out of 500 MnM sfx-6's... Does the word INTEGRITY mean anything in your world Ray? When I shipped the sfx-6 back to the address that paypal recommended, he refused to sign and said that the address was incorrect. Anyway, I still received my full refund. I doubt he will be back on this site but just incase you see him on other sites, he has had issues with other buyers too and received bad reveiws. He was not willing to take any responsibility at all for his side of the deal whatsoever. Just be mindful, that's all EU.....his name is Ray and email address is automaticpanics@gmail.com

I don't know if this counts as bad trading exactly, but Baloo just pulled out of a deal to buy my Pro One, after I spent days getting it very safely packed to send from the UK to Spain. He even sent me his address, and wanted to know how to pay me.

This is very common, I know, but I rarely get the opportunity to respond and explain my frustration with this type of buyer.

Potential buyers should not be hasty in their decisions. Just be honest, tell the person you're still thinking about it, or tell them that you want to buy their item but that if another comes along that's a better option you're going to go with that.

That way you give the seller the option to sell it to someone else in the meantime.

just to say that i just have a very speed and good trade with ollepetterson, who trade a shruthi for an sp 404. Speed and no problem at all....bye and thanks to olle!

Re:good trader shout outs

Posted by Flo - 2012/01/15 20:28

hello just to say i have a not so good, bad in fact, trade with shangaitang.
The unit he trade me, an eventide time factor, is totally blemished and scratched on all faces, dust on it, no manual, no box, lacking the screw part on a jack.... very bad trade, not a thrushy man. i dont try it for instance, but i will not be surprised if knobs will be buggy.

i enjoy him to give me a money compensation, we will see what he will do.

copy of the message i send to him:

hello

i have received the eventide.

I am very surprised, in a bad way, by the state of the unit: very bad in fact: shock, scratch, dust, no boxe and of course no manual... The unit clearly receive very bad treatment, don't know if you play in one of this hardcore band who break their guitar at the end of the show or what, but i think you really not a nice guy to not speak me about that... even more when i see all your mail asking photo, if the shruthi is in good state....., Unit was moving in his package... in fact if i don't love it, it will be impossible to resell it without a big money lost on it. I definitely not do this deal if you were thrushy about that, and say me all that things. When i think i have blemished shruthi case that i change in order you have the most perfect one, and i keep the blemished one, i definitely regret it. U don't even remove dust on it!!!! i will definitely explain that on EU in a bad report for you, enjoying other user to not buy or trade from you!
only way to fell me better is to give me some money in compensation, but would you do that????

so we will see his reaction.....

EDIT: after some time i begin to take great joy whith the unit, which is fully fonctionnal. A fact thas it's an "used" unit , but fully fonctionnal. And the seller nevers lies, as i never asked about the state of the unit, no photos too. Lesson for me! we can all have different attitude toward gear...

AND in fine, i must say i am happy with this trade. after all, it's a pedal which is here for take kick all the time.
i think i have had a bad reaction when i see the unit because i imagine it from photos, like new...

so i PUBLICLY PRESENT MY APOLOGIES TO HIM, and say that it's not a so bad deal.
sorry for being nervous this time.

I'm not on this forum anymore as I disgraced myself in a thread about the OP-1 a good while back! But I just wanted to say Undacovadruma is a top man, he brought the Esx to my place and we had a good chat, I would advise anyone to do business with him, no mucking around and he even left a batch of quality drum loops on the card for me (original too!). Anytime buddy! Hope you get some juicy gear for your other bits:)

I want to make a very loud shout out to VennDiagram. I recently purchased his Virus B. The item arrived safely and timely in exactly the condition that he described, and he went through the trouble of carefully packaging the thing, and taking another round of photos before sending her off into the great unknown (UPS). Seriously, I've never seen so much cling-film in my entire life. He also communicated well and seemed to care a lot about the product arriving safely. Overall, he was an absolute pleasure to buy from, especially if you like popping bubblewrap. :silly:

Thanks Onanonanon - great dealing with you too.

Excellent communication, very prompt payment too I might add via paypal and really easy to deal with (always a bonus). I did warn you about the 3 miles of cling film but the bubble wrap was that exciting little extra bonus I just knew you'd love. At least you didn't have to spend the Mayan Apocalypse smashing zombies over the head with the Virus B, seeing as it never happened, the bubble wrap seemed a rather fitting metaphor to the lack of the end of the world. Would recommend a trade / purchase / sale with you again to anyone else here. B)

Just want to say thanks to a few people here for great deals over the last month:

Isaac.anthony : got a MDUW+ from him for a great price. Great condition and awesome to deal with. Fast shipment and properly packed. Thanks Isaac!

Indigo333 : got my OT last night. Fantastic shape and all original material accounts for.. Very communicative and was kind enough to send plenty of pictures and videos before purchase. Even tossed in some extra awesomeness in the deal although my 8ball and sex slave seemed to get lost in transit. Heh.. Shipped fast and overly secure in packing. Took me 5 minutes to tear through the bubble wrap. A pleasure to buy from. Thanks Ed!

Long overdue thanks to Mistakem - sold me his Monomachine and was a pleasure to deal with.

More recent thanks to Orwell - sold me his A4 at a great price, also a pleasure to deal with.

Thanks to these guys, someone on KVR forums who didn't like the OT and a Machinedrum sale a while back at Awave, I now have all four Elektron machines to hang-out with!
