
Silly Monamachine track

Posted by milkmansnd - 2005/06/28 00:30

I was having some fun with this one today:

http://www.elektron-users.com/uploads/fatty_6_27_05.mp3

kinda going for that cheese factor again :P

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by sensorium - 2005/06/28 01:23

Nice. Show people how an acid bassline doesn't have to sound "trippy", but it can do funk too. Good job.

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by aom - 2005/07/05 17:21

Is that just the mono?

Sounded good to me!

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by milkmansnd - 2005/07/05 22:08

no, its 4 boxes: XBase09, Mono, MPC1K, x0xb0x :-D

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by Gyro - 2005/07/05 22:32

I liked it. Milkman, I know how you feel about the mpc, but how was it used in this track? Also, which sequencer did you use, if you used hardware? :-?

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by milkmansnd - 2005/07/06 00:46

I have given the MPC another chance, and am now using it a lot for a live set that I am playing in NYC at the end of the month. I decided, its smaller than lugging around the Virus and MD, so mostly I am using it for synth and some extra drums. I just want to keep this set fairly simple and small - so on this track the MPC is just doing the synth chords, and the claps that you hear at the beginning.

I was doing all the sequencing on the boxes synced to the monomachine - there are so many friggin sequencers on the table, its great!

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by aom - 2005/07/06 15:49

milkmansnd wrote:
no, its 4 boxes: XBase09, Mono, MPC1K, x0xb0x :-D

I was thinking, man, when did the mono start doing such nice acid?!

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by milkmansnd - 2005/07/06 16:20

well, it is - I am running my x0xb0x directly into the monomachine and dedicating a track to effects. However, yeah, its not making that 303 sound with the sildes and shit.

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by aom - 2005/07/06 17:12

^^Dang!

I go back and forth like a pendulum when it comes to wanting to plunk down for a mono!

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by milkmansnd - 2005/07/06 17:19

get one.

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by scuto - 2005/07/06 20:28

much fun, mr. milk!

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by scuto - 2005/07/06 20:30

wait--

i thought your geographic location read funny!

you live in vanyard halen, but my +4 zip code is 5150!

(i had to be told this was VH-related, because i don't pay attention to them. nothing against, just nothing for.)

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by milkmansnd - 2005/07/06 21:17

hahaha, I was waiting for someone to catch that :-D

meanwhile, I have been listening to your set too - It was a crazy weekend here as you can imagine, but I will have some comments for you soon.

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by aom - 2005/07/06 22:07

milkmansnd wrote:
get one.

Just got an evolver, so I need to wrap my head around that for now . . . planning on spending lots of time w/ it once I send the MD out for the upgrade . . .

However, if a good ebay deals comes up, you never know ;)

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by glaive - 2005/07/06 22:31

aom -

I just got an Evo, too. Lemme know if you want to bounce ideas.

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by milkmansnd - 2005/07/06 23:03

I have not touched my evolver since my monomachine arrived. I need to either use it, or get rid of it. I am kinda waiting for my adrenalinn purchase so that I can make music with that and the evolver and a guitar.

and of course the machinedrum :-D

=====

Re: Silly Monamachine track

Posted by glaive - 2005/07/06 23:35

The Evo and the Mono are worlds apart sonically, and, therefore, sound really good together.

=====