
Keyboard Amps

Posted by Spaceloopr - 2005/08/25 15:46

I was curious if anyone had any input on Keyboard amps?... it is a field I am not super familiar with... most of my stuff has always been through a home project studio, but am wanting to work on a decent live rig so am looking for Keyboard amps for my keys...my Rhodes already has an amp, but chances are I won't be taking that out much...

thanks for the input...

Todd

=====

Re: Keyboard Amps

Posted by milkmansnd - 2005/08/25 21:57

Dont get the Roland amp - they are basically garbage because the DI's are noisy and useless.

I have always stood behind the JBL EON series with a little behringer mixer for live keyboard mixing. Its really the best value - and the best sounding for that money. I toured for years with my 6 year old EON's and never had a problem. They can get fairly loud too.

=====