
Entertainment categorie forum access deny

Posted by howdragonsdisappear - 2009/09/30 07:04

Bad news, there are 2 weeks, the big company where i work have change the internet filters, i can't follow this site anymore (i have internet at home i know :P but i generally don't go on forum at home except in case of big issue ! i spend already too much time front a computer at work)

The Filter say the access is deny cause it's in "Entertainment" categorie

Is there a way to change this categorie from your side ?

Don't want to use an exterior proxy to go on the net (with an account who isn't mine ...)

@Dragon

Perhaps this may suit your needs:

<http://www.torproject.org/>

<http://www.torproject.org/>

I haven't used it but I am aware of it's existence as a couple of my students made an analysis on how it works a few years ago.

Interesting. I haven't a clue where this is set. As this isn't a setting I have ever touched. Anyone have a clue?

Can you use the RSS feed? I have this forum feeding into Google Reader - I can preview all the posts there easy enough. Try it out! RSS link at the bottom of just about every page on the forum.

right
I've read an article who explain thta people who take some break on the net are more productive and that it's really good for the concentration B)
Now i have to explain this to my manager :S

I just have to send the link by mail at my work address and try with Google Reader so ?
I don't have Firefox .. Explorer 6 I think ..
I'll look in that way too, don't know what is really RSS

RSS basically summarizes/returns all the posts in the forum in a standard form so that RSS readers can display them.

Google Reader is one of MANY RSS readers but it's very standard and the odds are your work has not blocked Google.

Setup a Google account. Go to Google Reader. Add the RSS feed for this board which is:

http://elektron-users.com/index2.php?option=com_fireboard&func=fb_rss&no_html=1

Sit back, relax and read the posts at work :-)
