For me... I have a Spectralis and Nord G2... and the Machinedrum is certainly easier to use than both of those... and there's a lot to say for it's functionality/ease of use ratio.. it's just I've decided to lose one of these synths and chose the Machinedrum. They are all amazing and I'd keep them all if I had the space and was a better musician I suppose. I may drop another one of them eventually... i guess it depends on how the Spectralis pans out as it's not very complete in it's OS at the moment.

If you find my price too high, feel free to make me your best offer as well. It will hit ebay before too long, but I try to sell outside of e-bay first because it costs a bit to sell there.
